New Software Provides Powerful, Affordable Forms Management Solution

Cumberland, RI -- May 23, 2005 — Businesses now have access to a more enhanced, effective and affordable way to manage their forms, thanks to the latest version of Formium. This new version provides the solution for companies that need to store, route, approval and digitally sign their forms.

Formium, which can be used to manage all leading form types including PDF and HTML, is designed to significantly reduce form distribution and processing costs for users.

“Overall, this will enable small and mid-size companies to process their forms-based data and communications more efficiently, decrease costs and better engage their customers,” said Gordon Kent, president of Indigo Eight Software.

According to Kent, the marketplace has an “unquenched” need for affordable solutions like Formium. Competing products, he said, cost four to 10 times the base price of Formium. “We’re more affordable than any competitor by thousands of dollars,” Kent added.

Indigo Eight Software introduced Formium several years ago as the ideal tool for small and mid-sized businesses. The latest version of the product represents the development of a full-featured forms solution. “We’ve tracked competitive developments, integrated new features, and paid careful attention to usability based on our target audience,” Kent said.

Formium is designed to provide business users with rich, complete forms management capabilities. It is a comprehensive resource that requires no additional services. “Unlike vendors that combine their product with services (which cost extra), we provide a complete out-of-the-box solution,” Kent explained.

The enhanced capability of Formium offers many features that aren’t available in other similar products. This translates into an array of valuable user benefits. For example, users can:

- Shorten the time employees, customers and clients spend filling out forms: Formium pre-populates forms with regularly re-entered data.
- Mix-and-match form types (HTML, PDF, InfoPath, etc.) that best suit the needs of the form's data or form filler: The software uses HTML forms to capture basic information and delivers a high-fidelity PDF form that is filled with that data but also designed for printing and hard-copy archiving.
- Automate recurring form-based applications with automatic scheduling: Formium alerts employees to fill out their monthly expense report automatically and then pre-fills the report with their name and other information.
- Effectively route forms through the organization to replace email or inter-office mail: The product sets due dates on each step of the user’s workflow and alerts key stakeholders when various stages in the process are accomplished, or overdue.

Formium is available through various resellers and online at <http://www.indigoeightsoftware.com>, starting at $999 (U.S.). For more information about the product or company, please visit http:// www.indigoeightsoftware.com or call (888)-706-6689.
